

Embroidery

Quality T-Shirt Printing offer customised embroidery services for its customers whether it is for business or personal use, Embroidery is the process by which your design or logo is sewn onto a garment using a computerised embroidery machine. The process gives a highly professional long lasting appearance and is suitable for text or logos. We use modern industrial embroidery machines which give a professional finish. Embroidery is ideal for corporate clothing, uniforms, work wear, and school wear.

Vinyl Printing

Vinyl printing is suitable for producing single or two colour text, logos and numbers. It works by a machine which cuts out a design or logo onto a single-colour sheet of vinyl. The vinyl design is then heat sealed on to the clothing using a heat press creating a vibrant, bold finish that will really stand out.

- Good for small to medium quantities
- Creates a vibrant finish

Versacamm Printing

Versacamm transfer printing involves printing a full colour image onto vinyl and cuts around the design or logo, which then heat pressed on to a t shirt or any other garment.

- Good for small to medium quantities
- Creates a sharp and glossy photo finish

Screen Printing

Screen printing involves the application of colour with ink directly through a screen onto transfer paper. The design on the transfer paper is then cured, and then transferred on to the clothing using a heat press. This method is suitable for decorating complex designs in large quantities.

- Good for medium to large quantities
- Creates a sharp and glossy finish
- Achieves long-lasting, durable results

Direct to Garment (DTG)

DTG printing is the latest method in t-shirt printing technology. It works much like an advanced inkjet printer, printing your design directly onto the t shirt, allowing for high speed and great quality printing. DTG printing is excellent printing method for large and complex designs with full colour images.

- Good for small to medium quantities
- Can print on light or dark garments
